THE MONTHLY NEWSLETTER OF GRACE

From the Pastor

(this is the second reflection on Pastor's sabbatical)

I am a follower of Jesus Christ. A Christian. I have been baptized into the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. As Martin Luther says in his explanation of what Holy Baptism means for daily life, each day, I am drowned in the water of baptism “in sorrow for sin,” and rise up as “a new person” each day “to live before God in righteousness ...forever.”

But this is not my only identity. I am a Lutheran. I am a Pingel. We are German Lutherans with roots in the founding of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church, and the great migration of Germans to the United States. Family and spouse are important, as is music, education, cars (that's only mine!), and much more, all a part of my identity.

Living in Waynesboro, I've come to learn many other important identities in our area. Many identify as DuPont or GE employees. Some take pride in being “native Waynesborians,” born, raised, schooled and now raising families here. Some identify with where they live: the Pelham neighborhood; the tree streets; west of the South River. We know there are Hokie, Cavalier and Duke fans, and on and on.

When I was on sabbatical, I traveled to Selma and Montgomery, Alabama to meet with Pastor Tiffany Chaney, a well-known Lutheran pastor in the ELCA (who is also black), and to visit various Civil Rights sites and memorials. I'll share my visit with Pr. Chaney in a future article.

To get to Selma, Alabama, one has to drive some beautiful rural roads. The terrain is rolling and gentle. Farms fields are surrounded by large forests. The area is timber country with many lumber mills en route. Also large in number through Bibb, Perry and Dallas Counties were churches almost beyond count. It was not hard to distinguish which churches were white and which were black by denomination (Methodist, African Methodist Episcopal, Baptist, Christian Church of God). The day was very hot, and I saw few, if any people. Selma, if you remember, was the scene of three attempted marches to Montgomery, the state capital, to advocate for equal voting rights for all people. The first March was the most brutal, with 600 hundred people viciously attacked on the Edmund Pettis Bridge. I wondered about the members of those congregations on the 7th day of March in 1965. Were they among the numbers who walked? Were they like John Lewis's family, who didn't want John involved in "that mess?" Did they gather to watch, as many whites did, many to yell and scream and beat the walking, then rapidly retreating crowd? There is much verifiable evidence of Klansmen, police, state trooper, and city or county official who kicked and clubbed and maimed that day were also church members, deacons, leaders. This is evil, we might say. But what of those who watched with horror, or cried watching the news reports, who called it evil, but did nothing else, who did not reach out to those who were hurt, who did not protest to police, or state or national representative, who did not go to their brothers and sisters in their congregations to say, "this is not right, we need to stand and declare this is not who we are as people of God!"?

What identity becomes primary when we are in relationship with others? This is a daily question for us as baptized children of God. If one of our other identities comes out ahead of our identity as Christ's body in this world, it will affect our relationship with others we come in contact with.

On the way to Alabama, I attended College Lutheran, Salem, where Pr. David Drebes preached on the Good Samaritan text on July 10th and emphasized that the lawyer wanted limits on who his neighbor was. Take a look at Luke 19:25-37. The lawyer was surprised by Jesus' story, because it violated his notion of identity. It was not in the lawyer's identity to consider that a Samaritan could be the example of neighbor, or a neighbor.

Theologian Walter Rauschenbush wrote 115 years ago: "Whoever uncouples the religious and the social life has not understood Jesus." He could well have written, "whoever uncouples our baptismal identity in Christ, and the social life we live daily has not understood Jesus." The lawyer can recite clearly the call to love God and love neighbor, but if Samaritans are uncoupled from the lawyer's social identity, he can recite the right words, but not heed what it means for his life.

During my retreat at Caroline Furnace near the end of my sabbatical, a Lutheran pastor at the Camp shared a story of a woman who was a member of a Lutheran Church in the Shenandoah Valley. She was on the county School Board, and there had been a long discussion and debate about the name of the school, which was named after a Confederate general. The School Board, after lengthy public comment sessions and deep discussion within the Board itself, recommended changing the name of the school to celebrate instead the natural beauty of the area that everyone lived in. The woman was among the Board Members who voted yes. There was a storm of protest, most particularly from the members of the Lutheran congregation this woman was a part of. A congregation council member and his family became so incensed, he published the woman's address and phone number on social media. The woman was deluged with angry calls, anonymous threats, vicious and ugly responses. The local newspaper published a lengthy article on the controversy. The Council Member was quoted, shouting that the core of his Identity (my emphasis) was being torn away from him.

The pastor who told me the story quietly concluded: “After all the times that man heard the Good News of Jesus Christ in that little Lutheran church that our baptismal identity in Jesus’ life, death and resurrection makes us who we truly are, how could he have said such a thing?”

Our faith tells us that our first and primary identity that saves us from sin, death and evil is our baptism into Christ’s death and resurrection. The relationships we have with others: “male, female; Jew, Greek; slave, free; black, white; gay, straight (Galatians 3:28-29) – all identities of their own, keep in mind – are held together by our Identity in Jesus Christ. More than that, this identity allows us to live a life that really is life. (I Timothy 6:17-19, one of the passages at the heart of the anthem written for Grace’s 125th anniversary). Able to live as followers of Christ with all who live in our community. This is who we are.

Highlights of Congregation Council September 20, 2022

- Pastor asking Grace members to attend CCE&J meeting on Saturday, October 15th @ 11 am at First Baptist Church. It will be about a 90 minute meeting. Discussion will review the history of the group and the importance of the group.
- Ron Almarode reports that our finances are in better order than previously this year. We are almost $8,000 over budget.
- The Covid Committee is to meet soon to review and consider current policy and procedure using the CDC's color coding as a guide. Council Members were asked to share their input about our current policy and provided a wide variety of input.
- November 5th is Pete Rufe's funeral. If Covid code is orange or red, only family will be invited to the reception.
- Our refugee family is doing well at work and school. We are grateful for Swahili speakers like Pastor Clair Good of Waynesboro Mennonite Church who have been very helpful in communicating clearly with the family.
- Grace will be joining WARM cold weather shelter this Jan-Feb 2023.
- The back pack group will be filling bags on the stage (fellowship hall). Valley Music Academy has been cooperative and helpful to remove instruments for storage to other areas.

Respectfully submitted,
Vivian Proctor

Welcome to Worship!

- Pastor Paul will give the CDC "color" status of Waynesboro each week in his telephone message. We will base the use of masking on the status of Waynesboro.
- We will follow CDC "color" guidelines to determine masking at worship.
- If our area is in an Orange (high risk) status, we will mask for worship.
- If we are in a Yellow (medium risk) or Green (low risk) status, those who are not vaccinated or are immune-compromised are encouraged to mask, while those who are vaccinated and boosted are "mask optional, but welcome."
- This applies to Worship, Meetings, Classes, VMA, other users of the facility, etc.

The Pastor Will Be Away

Pastor Paul and Jill return October 7th from an anniversary trip. Many thanks to Pastor Karen Van Stee for preaching and presiding this Sunday.

Disaster Response across the U.S. and around the World:

- Hurricanes Fiona and Ian caused great damage to Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic and Newfoundland; Ian drenched Florida and the Southeast.
- Typhoon Merbock caused widespread flooding in Alaska, with a very narrow time frame available for repairs before freezing weather sets in.
- A 7.7 magnitude earthquake shook Papua New Guinea in an area with a strong Lutheran presence (ELC-PNG), causing damage to buildings, roads and schools.
- Widespread flooding has washed away whole towns in Pakistan, with 1500 people believed killed.

Your gifts to Lutheran Disaster Response are used around the world to help those responding to natural disasters. Put “Lutheran Disaster Response” in the line item of your check.

Covid Bivalent Booster Update—The FDA and CDC approved a new Bivalent COVID vaccine for administration to help tackle traditional COVID variants and the new Omicron variants. The approved Bivalent “Booster Only” vaccine is now approved for administration and is designed to help fight against the new COVID variants. Augusta Health has received the Bivalent vaccine and is now offering it. For more information or to schedule your Bivalent booster you may logon to Augusta Health’s website at www.augustahealth.com. Bivalent Booster Clinics will be held at the Waynesboro Primary Care location (Lew Dewitt Blvd.) on Mondays and Wednesdays.

An Invitation to You on October 15th - As noted in Pastor’s sermon 9/18, there will be a Forum at First Baptist, Waynesboro's Fellowship Hall, where Grace and Christ Tabernacle congregations are invited to hear about what a group of our congregation members have been doing the last two + years as a Coalition for Christian Equity and Justice and inviting you to take part as well. It starts at 11:00 a.m. Please plan on attending, and mark your calendars!

New Adult Education! Pastor Karen Van Stee began a Fall Sunday School class available at 9:00 a.m. The focus of the class will be on the Gospel of Matthew, using the ELCA's Book of Faith curriculum. We began with the gospel of John last Spring. Come and grow in Good News! as we study the gospel of Matthew.

Children and Youth Planning Continues - Pastor Paul continues to visit and call parents with families and children, and we will be making an announcement about Children and Youth activities from our Children and Youth Committee in the near future. As a people of God together, we encourage EACH OF US to welcome and encourage our children and youth as they grow not only physically, but also in our Faith together.

Pastor Paul accepts Invitation to Serve on the Synod Tapestry Committee - The Tapestry Committee helps our Synod to "love justice" as God does (see Amos 5:24), and work for social justice in areas of Racial Justice, Care of Creation, LGBTQIA Inclusion, and Women's Justice. Pastor Paul's focus will be on Racial Justice Team. There is a goal over the next few months for Tapestry to host Racial Justice workshops around the Synod, and Grace will host an event for our area in late October or November Grace Receives a $10,000 Gift for Ministry! - A gift was received in honor and thanksgiving of Grace members in the amount of $10,000 by a dear friend, for the Grace members to designate for use within the ministries of the congregation. The recipients of the gift wish to remain anonymous. $5,000 of the gift has been designated for Grace and Westminster Presbyterian's Refugee Ministry. The other $5,000 has been designated for Youth Activities, in particular those ecumenical activities that allow Grace Youth to participate with other Youth in the Community. God provides gifts for ministry, and has richly blessed Grace's ministry through this generous honorarium!

All God's Children Lending Library - Our lending library has found a new home in the LIBRARY near the History room. You can continue to borrow and return books there anytime. We'd love to hear your thoughts about the materials you've read and hope you will join us in taking the ELCA Anti-Racist Pledge. Get to know the treasures in the LIBRARY, including P. Buckley Moss. Contact the church office, Carolyn Barrette, Rick Bump, or Linda Meyer for more information.

Dear Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church members,

On behalf of RHGA and our clients, I want to thank the members of Grace Evangelical for your generous donation on 12 September 2022 of $500.00 supporting our mission in the Greater Augusta region. We continue to be so appreciative of our faithful volunteers serving from your congregation. Their efforts and skills have truly been the key to making major impacts in the lives of a number of our households.

We realize that many church members would like to, but are not physically able to, assist in performing these home repairs. So congregational gifts such as yours give everyone a hand in the work of RHGA. By offsetting material costs.

Thank you!
